Bananas Are Nutritious.
Bananas are always wholesome, nutritious, cheap, easily digested, always in season, all meat, easy to handle, good cooked or raw. Nature hermetically seals them in a dust and germ-proof package. And, above all, they are produced without drawing on the nation's resources, and their importation from our Latin-American cousins aids in developing a reciprocal market for our goods.—Exchange.

LIFE DIARY OF
MRS. WEAVER

Her Experience Was a Very Sad One.
NEVER AGAIN FOR MARTHA.

She Brings Shame and Ridicule Upon Herself—Husband a Willing Accomplice—They Both Were Taught a Lesson That Will Last Them Their Entire Lifetimes.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.] Do not judge from mere appearances, for the light laughter that bubbles on the lip often mingles over the depth of sadness, and the serious look may be the sober veil that covers a divine peace and joy. The bosom may ache beneath diamond brooches, and many a blithe heart dances under coarse wool.

Assuming the above to be true, we will proceed to tear a page from the life diary of Mrs. Weaver and present it to our readers.

That New Suit.
"What am I going to do about that new suit I must have?" said Martha Weaver to her husband as he came in from work one evening.

"Why is there any question about that? Go to Hopkins & Co. and get what you need. If you need a suit get it," answered her husband.

"I have looked there," replied Martha, "but they haven't anything that I want. I just need a simple suit, but I want good material, and it must be neatly and well made, one that I could use for almost any occasion. I would prefer a ready made suit, but those that Hopkins & Co. have appear to be made of poor, flimsy material, and they are decked out with such cheap, flashy, dowdy trimming that I just cannot bear to wear them," replied Martha.

The False Step.
"Well, what do you want to do—run into the city and get you a suit?" asked John.

"No. That does not suit me either, for when I have to pay my fare, my hotel bill and other incidental expenses it makes the cost too high and also takes more time than I can spare for the purchase of one suit," said Martha.
"Could you not order one? Didn't I see some mail order catalogues around here awhile ago?" asked the interested

Odor.
Any substance that will not dissolve in water has an odor. It is the actual substance itself, floating in particles in the air, as in the case of light and sound. The damper a thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

Bees and Men.
A honey bee, once having lost its temper and used its stinger, becomes useless and soon dies. So it is with human beings, says Keith Clevenger of Osawatimie. Once they are no longer able to control their tempers and keep calm under trying circumstances, just so soon they begin to slip and lose their grip on business and usefulness.—Kansas City Star.

Not Intended to Be Accepted.
The peasants in Spain, on meeting a stranger, offer him in salutation a piece of bread they always carry about with them. Of course it is refused with thanks, and there would certainly be a great deal of astonishment—if not trouble—if it was accepted. In the same way the Mexican magnanimously places all his worldly goods at his guest's disposal, but never expects him to take him at his word.

Teamwork.
"Your wife insists on taking the pur-sot when you go driving?"
"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "When the car breaks down the parrot supplies appropriate remarks while I give my undivided attention to the repairs."

For a long time Clawson has been thirsting to tell Blobbins that he and George Washington had nothing in common, but had never found an opportunity. One day, however, they met at the academy, and stood together gazing at a lovely little statue.
Clawson turned to his catalogue.
"Ah," he said, "this is 'Truth'!" Waving a hand toward the statue, he said: "Truth allow me to present my friend, Mr. Blobbins. I feel sure you two have never met before!"—

In The Forties

How traveling is metamorphosed these days to be sure! Yet some men "fond of handling the ribbons," and some women who "want to see the scenery at their leisure," still regret "the spanking days and rocking stage-coach of the past."

Here is the way the Allegheny mountains were crossed in 1840:
"It was midwinter when we arrived at Wheeling, and as the stage coach was to start at five o'clock in the morning, no one thought of going to bed, so we took our way through the frozen streets to secure through tickets to Philadelphia. It was pitch dark and bitter cold—the damp, penetrating weather that reaches the very marrow of our bones.

"The little den, called by courtesy the office, was filled with passengers as damp, cold and ill-natured as ourselves.
There was a handful of coal burning in a small grate and around it were grouped the round-shouldered, unsympathetic people who were to be our fellow passengers. They glanced at us and closed up all the open space near the fire, as if to say: 'You don't get in here, we can tell you. You have no right to travel in our coach, anyway!'

"At one side stood a table and on it was a coffee pot and cups, some saundages frozen stiff and an unattractive loaf of bread, over which presided a tall dandy, who leaned against the wall fast asleep. We were told that we could get good breakfast twenty miles away from Wheeling.

"At the appointed time the heavy old coach came up and we all clambered in and stowed ourselves away pell-mell. A short way from town there was a long hill, up which the horses toiled, so this gave us all time to settle down for a quiet nap. One snore after another announced their success; in a few minutes six out of the nine passengers were oblivious of their misery.

"Not being sleepy, I studied the snorers. A large fat man opposite me had a short, angry snore. He snored so loudly that he woke himself up and glared about him impudently, as though he hoped they wouldn't make that noise again!

"The old lady who was crushing me up in the corner snored deeply and contentedly.

"Someone off in a dark corner had a genial way of joining in as though he snored merely to oblige the passengers; but the grand musician of the company sat opposite me. I never heard anything approaching him either for quality or compass. It was a back-action snore, that began in a bold agitated movement suddenly brought up with a jerk and ended in a whistle.

"The whole band was in full play when we stopped, with a tremendous jerk, and everybody awoke with oaths or 'Pshaw's' over a bad jolt. The summit gained, there was a sharp crack of the whip, the horses started and everybody was jerked violently backward. Soon the chorus began again, however, and I joined in till the coach came to a full stop at the stable where the horses were to be changed.

"Stiff and sleepy and cramped from sitting so long in one position, the sun now rose and came in at all sorts of places, waking and blinding everybody.
What a discontented lot we were! And we all hated each other!

"At last, Breakfast! Ah! Hot coffee, ham and eggs and buckwheat cakes. The meal was not half over before we were a band of brothers.
We could not do enough for each other.
All was harmony and peace."

Nor was that all, for they drove into a severe mountain storm and intense cold darkness; the horses fell on the icy roads; the stage rocked wildly in the wind and nearly blew over! Twenty-four hours of this, a driver frozen stiff and assisted down from the box.
We do it now in six hours, in a comfortable bed, in a warm, well-lighted car. Some "moderns" are mighty good angels.

Our chief loss has been the great, cheerful, roaring open fires that people had in those days. The domestic vic-tues began to decay when people were reduced to sitting around a hole in the wall or a gloomy metal register without armchairs, stories, songs, grandparents and little children roasting apples or popping corn—friends and strangers dropping in and getting a warm welcome, a place in the circle and what Spaniards call "the love of the fire."—Baltimore News.

AROUND THE WORLD

Gold is being mined at a depth of more than 5,000 feet in South Africa.

Electrification of steam railroads in the United States last year brought the total of such equipment up to about 2,500 miles.

Japan is planning to adopt an alphabet of 47 letters, including most of the Roman characters, some Russian and the rest original symbols.

The annual production of sulphur in the United States has increased from a few more than 3,000 tons to more than 230,000 tons in the last dozen years.

WHY BIRDS LOSE FEATHERS

Moulting is Similar to That Which Takes Place in Other Forms of Animal Life.

Feathers become worn, torn and broken, and must be replaced. The moulting of birds is similar to what takes place in other forms of animal life. Horses grow long coats of hair in winter which they shed in summer.
Dogs cast their coats. Snakes cast their skins, crabs and other shell fish cast their shells.

If a crab lived always in one shell his body could never grow any bigger.
At a certain time in the year his flesh becomes very watery, so he can draw his great claws through the narrow opening at the top of the shells in which they are enclosed, and he comes out of his shell almost as soft and pulpy as an egg in its skin when its shell is removed.

Birds are never left bare like this.
They moult gradually. Some are so completely robbed of their strong feathers that they are glad to go into hiding until the new ones grow. They are then as defenseless as the stag which has shed its mighty antlers.

Jellied Prunes.

Wash one pound of prunes, soak in cold water overnight. In morning bring to boiling point in same water, simmer without boiling three or four hours or until prunes are soft, but not broken; add one-half cupful sugar the last hour of cooking. If necessary to add more water add it before the sugar.

When cold, drain, remove stones, and keep prunes whole if possible. Add enough boiling water to the liquid to make four cupfuls and pour over four tablespoonfuls granulated gelatin softened in one-half cupful cold water.
Strain, add one-half cupful sugar and prunes. Mold and chill. Serve with or without cream.

Electric Time Signals.

A new kind of time signal has recently been installed at the Hester observatory, Wellington, New Zealand.
Three electric lamps are mounted in a vertical row on the observatory flagstaff, 6 feet apart; the lowest green, the middle red and the highest white. The lights are switched on 50 minutes, 10 minutes and 5 minutes, respectively, before the hour of the signal, at which hour they are all extinguished simultaneously. The signals are given at 20 hours, 21 hours and 22 hours, Greenwich mean time.—Scientific American.

Another Vampire.

There she stood—dusky, rounded, but cruel—cruel as they are made!
As the man gazed at that bright, hard face, and touched her smooth, rounded cheek with his rough hand, he thought of the destruction she would work among the men into whose company she was going. She was fully equipped for the journey, and her terrible factation made even his stout heart quake and fear. Quick as thought, before it was too late, he seized her roughly and flung her from him—and one more bomb exploded in the enemy's trenches.

Walnut Macaroons.

One cupful sugar, one-third cupful butter, two cupfuls flour, two eggs, one teaspoonful soda dissolved in hot water, one-half teaspoonful each nutmeg, ground clove and cinnamon, one cupful English walnut meats or black walnut meats, cut, not chopped; one cupful dates, chopped fine.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, eggs one at a time without beating.
Stir in dates, nut meats, spices and soda. Add flour gradually with flour sifter. Drop from teaspoon on greased pan.

Teamwork.

the car breaks down the parrot supplies appropriate remarks while I
